

QUEEN VICTORIA TO BUILD A HOSPITAL. An English paper makes the following announcement:—The Queen is about to perform an act of great munificence. During the five years that she has remained in retirement she has necessarily accumulated a large portion of her private purse allowance, which, under her royal hospitality, both to her own subjects and to foreign princes, Her Majesty, desiring it should be put to some use, has resolved to devote the sum to a half a million sterling for the erection of a convalescent hospital. The master plan has been kept very quiet, but it is believed that the money has been already made over to trustees, and the royal bounty will before long be made known officially. The new institution will be built especially in connection with St. Bartholomew's Hospital, and the treasurer and other officials of that renowned charity will be among the trustees. It is proposed to spend about $200,000 in purchasing the site and erecting the building, and to keep the remainder of the sum in hand for the present. The convalescent hospital will be built at a considerable distance from London, so as to give the inmates the advantage of pure air.

DISCOVERY OF TREASURE IN EGYPT. A paper published in Alexandria, Egypt, states:—Every one is talking for the last few days about a treasure found in the Province of Fayoum. The story goes that an old resident of the Province waited in a private chamber upon his highness, and asked permission to make a search in the garden of an ancient Coptic convent, now abandoned, with the view of recovering a treasure which old manuscripts described as being buried in a certain spot. The Viceroys granted the necessary permission, allowing him to employ a party of thirty men, and he proceeded to dig. The search was commenced, and after a day or two he had succeeded in bringing to light a treasure consisting of a large quantity of gold and silver, and a quantity of pearls, rubies, and diamonds, and a quantity of other articles of great value. The discovery having been telegraphed to the Viceroy, he sent a party to investigate the matter in person. Can it be the cash-box of Amenophis XXXVII, which that monarch hid on a journey, according to inscriptions on the obelisk of Luxor?

A ROYAL SILVER WEDDING. On the 28th of May the King and Queen of Denmark celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. Copenhagen was gaily decorated in honor of the event, and the coronation provided a free dinner for seven thousand poor people; a children's festival took place in the garden of Rosenborg castle, where five thousand little ones assembled, and sixty deputations from all parts of the country came to offer congratulations. Among the presents to the King and Queen were large silver vessels manufactured at the Royal Danish porcelain works. The inhabitants of Flensburg and other parts of North Germany also sent congratulations that they still consider their rightful king and queen, but the collections had to be made in secret. Several large amounts have been collected with a view of founding benevolent institutions in commemoration of the day.
